

I think it is unfair that wireless carriers should be held to a different level of standard than wireline carriers, when the standard was set for the benefit of the customer. Local number portability is no different from wireless than it is for wireline from a customer point of view. The wireless companies are just trying to lock us in and hold us prisoner to a phone number we are used to simply because they can. Please don't allow them to do this anymore.